C. Ph. E. Bach's third movement from the Sonata Wq70/5 exists in two versions. One of which was attributed to the organ by the Bach researcher J. N. Forkel and the other to the harpsichord. (Four other sonatas declared as "organ solos" were written by Bach for Princess Anna Amalia of Prussia and her two manual organ). Unfortunately no handwritten copy exists. From contemporary transcriptions, the forte and piano passages can be deduced in principle but not unambiguously. Thus, a decision was made here in favor of larger contexts as opposed to the smaller ones which mainly contained inconsistencies.
