Auld Lang Syne (Scots, literally “old long since”) is one of the best-known songs in the English-speaking world. The melody goes back to a pentatonic Scottish folk song. The song is traditionally sung at the turn of the year to commemorate the deceased of the past year. The German title is “Nehmt Abschied, Brüder”. In the Boy Scout movement, it is regarded worldwide as a farewell song that is sung at the end of events.
